

The Deadly Farm Boy (Paperback)

By Charlie Horn

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English. Brand new Book. THE DEADLY FARM BOYA HANK TOWER NOVEL In 1982, at age two, Jonah was abandoned on an isolated Ozark farm by a desperate, young mother. The farm's sole occupant, an elderly widow, kept him to help her as he aged. He had no birth certificate, recorded fingerprints, DNA or any other kind of traceable identification. He never learned to read or write. At sixteen, his "mother" died and he left the farm. He had two assets that would insure a livelihood: a photographic memory and an ability to kill without feeling. His maturing is recorded here as he gradually moves eastward and polishes his two talents, card-counting and murder. Eventually, three million-dollar art thefts and three murders bring him and Hank Tower face to face. His multi-year journey eastward includes -Isa Hajjar, a Lebanese casino owner who sees Jonah's potential as a hired killer and becomes his mentor. -Hetty, a young and beautiful country singer who simultaneously longs for him and fears him, and may be the only person he cares for. -a lawyer who has discovered an unusual way to steal multi-million-dollar art, and requires Jonah's special talent...
